Immigration Services Agency
(June 22, 2020 update)

Handling of residency applications from mid-to-long-term residents and former mid-to-long-term residents who have difficulty returning to their home country due to the impact of the novel coronavirus (COVID-19)

Up until now, the Immigration Services Agency took the measure of granting the status of residence of “Temporary Visitor (90 Days)” or “Designated Activities (3 Months)” to mid-to-long-term residents, who were finding it difficult to return to their home country having been impacted by the novel coronavirus, up until the time of them being able to return.

However, since it is still difficult for them to return to their home country, from now on, mid-to-long-term residents who have difficulty returning to their home country will be granted the status of residence of “Designated Activities (6 Months)” (see Attachment 1). Along with this, even former mid-to-long-term residents (excluding foreign nationals residing with the status of residence of “Designated Activities (Preparations for Departure)”, who are currently residing with a status of residence of three months or less, will be permitted the status of residence of “Designated Activities” (6 Months)” at the time of their next application such as the application for extension of the period of stay”.

In addition, students who have difficulty returning to their home country and wish to work will be allowed to work (part-time) within a limit of 28 hours per week.

With regard to some of the applications from residents residing in the area of the Tokyo Regional Immigration Bureau, in order to prevent the application counters from becoming crowded, in principle, applications sent by post only to the Tokyo Regional Immigration Bureau will be accepted until ~~June 30 this year (must arrive by this date)~~ July 31(must arrive by this date) (see Attachment 2 for details). In addition, regarding applications from former technical intern trainees, the supervising organization or accepting organization is permitted to compile the application and act as an agent for the former technical intern trainee.
