Resilient and transparent institutions: Strengthening judicial integrity and preventing corruption in the justice system.

Fair, humane and effective criminal justice systems: Fostering the rehabilitation and social integration of prisoners to provide a new chance in life.

Youth crime prevention: Preventing youth crime through sports-based programmes and life skills training.

Education for Justice: Supporting the integration of crime prevention and the rule of law into all levels of education.

Drugs and Crime

Official Websites

<https://www.cites.org/eng/prog/iccwc.php>

<https://www.unodc.org/unodc/en/wildlife-and-forest-crime/global-programme.html>

Wildlife and forest crimes are serious transnational organized crimes. Criminal groups use the same routes and techniques to traffic wildlife and other illicit commodities, exploiting gaps in national law enforcement and criminal justice systems. These crimes threaten biodiversity, good governance, economic development and livelihoods, and are interlinked with other transnational organized crimes, money-laundering and corruption.

The International Consortium on Combating Wildlife Crime (ICCWC), founded in 2010, is the collaborative effort of five inter-governmental organizations working to strengthen criminal justice systems and provide coordinated support at national, regional and international level to combat these crimes with a view to ensuring that these offences are effectively and collectively addressed. ICCWC includes the CITES Secretariat, INTERPOL, UNODC, the World Bank and the World Customs Organization.

International Criminal Court: Towards a more just world

Follow the personal stories of survivors of mass crimes. Learn how the ICC Rome Statute addresses genocide, war crimes, crimes against humanity and aggression. Engage with the ICC, support the UN's Global Goal 16: Peace & Justice, and help prevent these crimes.

Why justice?

Injustice exists in many forms.

Violent crimes, when widespread and systematic, shatter societies, create instability and cause immeasurable harm.

To address injustice, we seek accountability for those most responsible.

We also seek to help repair some of the harm done.

To make justice part of the healing process.

To rebuild communities.

To promote reconciliation.

To help strengthen the chance of long-term peace.

In exploring injustice and harm done, we seek to find possibilities for healing and hope.

We seek to break cycles of violence, so peace is possible.

We seek to build a more just world.

The Ministry of Justice (MOJ) began its assistance toward Asian countries in 1994. In response to the increase of requests for Japan's legal technical assistance since then, in April 2001 the MOJ established the International Cooperation Department (ICD) within the Research and Training Institute, a subordinate organization of the MOJ, to exclusively specialize in legal cooperation.

The characteristic of ICD's activity is that we do not impose Japanese legal system to the client countries but try to find the laws and systems most appropriate for them, through dialogue with legal professionals in each country.

We do believe that the above-mentioned process enables to encourage client countries to take the initiative in establishing, operating or improving their own systems.

In this exhibition, we would like to show the history of Japan's legal technical assistance and activities and achievements of the ICD, thus introduce a new approach on the enhancement of rule of law.

Lawyer Forum for Victim Support (bridged as "VS Forum") is a group organized by attorneys to realize policies for crime victims.

Crime victims had once been regarded as "a piece of evidence", just a means to prove a crime. What made the development of victim rights in Japan distinct from others is that crime victims themselves stood up and fought for their rights. This session will report the struggle which crime victims have gone through and the present victim support system as its outcome.

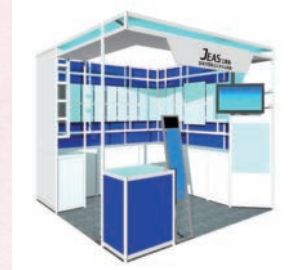

And Victims of sexual offenses, who had been left behind in Japanese society, began to raise their voices and are now trying to change the legal system.

This session will report those recent movements in Japan.

Kyoto Prison

Kyoto Prison is a penal institution under the jurisdiction of the Ministry of Justice. Based on international standards and norms, we provide inmates with various prison works useful to obtain vocational skills and knowledge in social life and strengthen their will to work. We also offer correctional treatment, job assistance and welfare support for smooth and successful rehabilitation and reintegration into society.

We promote the whole-of-society approach to reintegrate inmates back into society, with the cooperation of Chaplains, Voluntary Visitors, Universities, and private sectors.

At our exhibition site, our efforts for these challenges are visually displayed.
